5 Witnesses Tell of Wounds on Dead Woman's Head in Wife-Slaying Trial.

Chester, S. C., July 2 (A.P.).—The blood-spotted garments worn by Mrs. Faye Wilson King the day of her death and testimony of Federal Judge J. Lyle Glenn, who conducted the inquiry that led to the indictment of Rafe F. King, on a charge of wife murder, held the

The garments were introduced into evidence as five Sharon, S. C., women, who prepared the body of the 24-year-old French teacher for burial, described a wound on her forehead and the bruised condition of her throat.

Two ministers of the gospel from Sharon, where the tragedy occurred, told of incidents following the finding of Mrs. King's body in an outhouse near her home after her husband had reported to another minister, the Rev. S. T. Ferguson, that his wife had failed to return to school.

Blood Spots Described.

The Rev. E. B. Hunter, pastor of the Associated Reformed Presbyterian Church, told of finding blood spots in several places in the kitchen of the King home. He also told of finding a blood-spotted suit of men's underwear in a trunk.

The Rev. Mr. Hunter also described how King told him he had been alone all day and of his discovery that night that there were coals in the kitchen fireplace.

Great Welcome Given Spanish Fliers as They Return From Azores.

CROWDS BESIEGE AUTOS

Gibraltar, July 2 (A.P.)—The Spanish filers, headed by Maj. Ramon Franco, whose fate had been in doubt for more than a week while they floated in their scapiane off the Azores, came into port this morning on the British aircraft carrier Eagle. No greater welcome than they received ever was accorded to brave men who had faced the terrors of the air and seas.

All the British residents of England's great rock fortress, together with thousands of Spaniards, Moors from Africa in picturesque garments, and other forceign visitors, gathered in the streets, along the slopes and at all other points of vantage to greet the men who were as those returning from the grave.

Maj. Eduardo Gonzales Gellarza, Capt. Julio Bulz de Alda, and Mechanic Pedro Madariaga, came ashore at length from the rescuing vessel and responded happily to the cheering, the handshaking and the embraces from the thousands of their admirers.

Perils Accompanied Flight.

Perlis Accompanied Flight.

Theirs was a tale of dangerous adventure. Their flight from Spain to the Azores encountered obstacles of winds and clouds all the way, and at last they found themselves on the morning of the second day floating at some unknown distance from the Azores, which had been their objective on their way to America.

For a day or two all went well, but later the waves buffeted their plane. There was food in abundance, but the men ran short of water. They kept their nerve, and were in good spirits when they were sighted by a plane from the Eagle, which spotted just in the nick of time the tiny object tossing on the sea miles away.

When the Eagle bore down upon them and took them aboard, their joy knew no bounds.

Soon after the British aircraft carrier reached Gibraltar, Franco and his comrades appeared on deck and a roar of applause swept the waterfront. Cheers, shouts and handclapping greeted them as they landed, and everywhere they went through Gibraltar the same enthusiasm was displayed. As they motored across to the Spanish frontier towns, they were the object of a similar welcome.

Salutes Are Fired.

Amidst the firing of salutes and the playing of the British and Spanish national anthems, the filers, accompanied by British and Spanish officials who went aboard the Eagle to meet them, came ashore. Police and marines found it difficult to keep back the crowds. Beautiful senoritas and English girls-clamored around the automobiles for autographs, many of them at the same time pelting the rescued filers with flowers. Here and there an African, in fez or turban, shouldered with the white helmeted Britisher or strawhatted American tourist to get a close look at the heroes of the day.

Groups of workmen on the docks and mechanics, coal-passers and enginemen on nearby naval colliers and other ships, in overalls, their faces grimy, gave vociferous demonstrations for Madariaga, as representing their own type. Madariags grinned and waved acknowledgement. He laughed heartily when one British fireman yelled: "Hurrah for that Spanish mechanic."

What caused them to vary their opinions as to what kind of President Mr. Hoover would make during the crucial period between the "I do not choose" statement of Augyst 2, 1927, and the Kansas City convention? Why was it that the "allies" made such hard sledding, even in such eminently protected politically minded States as Ohio?

"I was kept in that house until 1:30 o'clock this morning. They treated me very fine. We played poker and drank wine. My food consisted of sandwiches and most wonderful coffee. These fellows took nothing from me except that I lost $2.80 playing poker with them. In fact, that cleaned me out of ready cash. For some reason, they wanted a souvenir of the job, so I gave them my belt, which had a very fine silver buckle on it."

On Saturday night Elliott said the kind gunmen allowed him to send a note to his wife, which case of them dictated as follows: "I am O. K. Don't worry. Am being detained. Best love to you and Ruth. Willard." They promised to mail it right away, but were just fooling.

Elliott said he was blindfolded and driven around for a while before he was turned loose beside his own car with a warning to do nothing until the car which had a 'ought him from the house disappeared. He said he then started for Nutley, stopping at a gasoline station just outs'de of town and buying five gallons of fuel. How he paid for the gasoline, in view of his poker losses, was the one slight discrepancy not immediately explained.

Hagerstown, Md., July 2.—Fred A. Stouffer, 19, silk weaver, who yesterday confessed that he and Paul R. Hesson held up the Maugansville Bank last Wednesday today turned over to the authorities $765 of the $865 money taken from the drawers at the bank.

Stouffer, who in his first confession said that he did not get any of the money, today admitted that he had slipped back to the scene last Wednesday night and took the money that he and Hesson had hidden along the Ceartospike. He said before the loot was concealed Hesson took $25 and he $20. He said that they only got $820 from the bank instead of $865, which the cashier said was missing.—

Hesson is believed to have returned to the spot where the money was hidden last Friday night, only to find that it was gone. He is known to have left the bus, from Chambersburg, Pa., for Youngstown, Ohlo, last Saturday morning. That was the last trace the police have of him.

American Motor Kings Are Invited to Give Views in Tariff Revision.

SMOOT ANSWERS GEORGE

(Associated Press.)

Whether American automobile manufacturers are willing to stand for a reduction or removal of the present 55 per cent duty on imported passenger cars and trucks shared interest with other tariff developments yesterday at the Capitol.

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee replied to charges by Democrats that the farmers were being given a "raw deal" in the revision, declaring they were "so anxious to make political capital out of the situation that they are imagining all sorts of rates and unjust schedules."

Two Subcommittes Have Hearings.

witnesses yet to be heard, until Monday.

Meanwhile, Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, chairman of the metals subcommittee, awaited replies to the invitations sent Monday to four of the leading automobile and truck manufacturers, asking them to appear July 11 to give their views on a proposal to reduce or wipe out the automobile tariff.

Those invited were Henry Ford, alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors; Alvin Macauley, president of the National Automotive Chamber of Commerce and head of the Packard Motor Co., and W. T. White, president of the White Truck Co.

Reports have been circulated for the past year that certain manufacturers believe they would be better off without a tariff, or at least with a reduced duty, and Senator Reed is understood to have been actuated in sending the invitations by a desire to bring into the open the producers' views.

Te Avoid Retallatory Tariffs.

He has heard unconfirmed reports that the manufacturers have stated privately that continuation of the 25 per cent duty may invite further retallatory tariffs by foreign countries, and that they felt since the United States was firmly entrenched in the world automobile market and imports were negligible compared with exports, it might be wise to lower the duty or remove it altogether.

Te-'ing a rap particularly at the statement Sunday by Senator George of Georgia, a minority member of the finance committee, that increases in agricultural rates were being followed by boosts in duties, on manufactured commodities beyond the componsatory level. Chairman Smoot declared this was "not only unfair but misleading."

The Tinance committee has not acted on any schedules as yet and is not likely to do so for some time, adding that so far as the revision has gone the farmers and producers by far have been given "the best of it." the farmers and producers by have been given "the best of it."

NEW DEPARTMENT URGED

Atlanta, Ga., July 2 (A.P.) .- Edu ion was seen as a solution to the race mestion by Robert R. Moton, principal f the Normal and Industrial Institute of the Normal and Industrial Institute for negroes at Tuskeges, Ala., in an address today before the representative Assembly of the National Education Convention in session here. "Two races as ethnologically different as the negro and the white can live together side by side in amity if both are educated." he declared. Dr. Moton said the negro was not interested in what was usually described a "social equality" and was as opposed to intermarriage as the white race, but that the negro did desire equality in education and citizenship.

The assembly accepted the report of the legislative committee urging a Federal department of education, and the report of the committee on propagantia, which declared that the public schools must be kept inviolate for teaching children "how to think, not what to think."

N. Y. U. Man Speaks.

Speaker included Dr. Moton, Howard Driggs, of the New York University school of education, and Representative John M. Robsion, of the Eleventh Congressional District of Kentucky, Dr. Moton traced the progress of negro education in the South. Prior to the war between the States, he said, public education was for aristocrats and not for negroes nor poor whites.

"The reconstruction governments of the Southern States had maky foultable but they put on the statute books of practically every Southern State provisions for popular education of negroes and whites alike, Since then negro education has become popular with virtually all Southerners, and while the expenditure per negro child is still much less than per white child, progress is being made every year."

"Negro Not Inferior."

"Negro Not Inferior."

Discussing race relations, Dr. Moton said the negro was not inferior to the white, but still more backward. "However," he averred, "the white race itself only a little over ten years ago staged an example of backwardness by killing each other in Europe that was not very inspiring."

Quoting the commandment of Christ he "love thy neighbor as thyself." Dr. Moton said he believed "there was enough Christianity and democracy in America to bring about harmonious race relations and that with education both races could work together in respect and friendship toward building a greater and better nation."

Representative Robsion, a former teacher, spoke on behalf of a bill he has introduced in Congress to create a Federal department of education. He said such a department would not interfers with State control of elvication. Speaking on the theme of "the Republic of tomorrow," Representative Robsion declared that "no great nation ever fell from without, but from within, and the future of the republic adepends on the education today of its 30,000,000 school children."

greatly increased expenditures for the present fiscal year beyond the original budget. We know that expenditures for the fiscal year just passed exceed the original budget by over $200,000,000, and much of the legislation expanding expenditures has not yet come into effect. The completion of the budget for the year beginning July 1, 1930, will be helpful in determining the rate of these increased expenditures.

BRITANNIA FIRST.

Great Britain's traditional policy of making her own interests paramount in international affairs is apparent in the king's speech from the throne, read to Parliament yesterday by the lord chancellor. An atmosphere of friendliness to America is perceptible, but it will be noted that the new Labor government embarks upon its work with no thought of allowing British interests to be sacrificed to any form of Anglo-American rapprochement.

In the matter of naval reductions there is an expression of hope for agreement between Britain and America, but no inkling of any British concession or any readiness to rush into a naval conference on the basis of the proposed American formula or yardstick for measuring relative naval strength. There is to be no undue haste and there are to be no miracles. The usual policy of proceeding slowly and cautiously, ascertaining in advance what Britain has to gain from every step, is clearly

Ramsay MacDonald, the British Premier, whose address followed the speech from the throne, discourages hope of speedy action on the basis of the American formula. He summarizes the situation as follows:

The Kellogg pact has been signed by practically all the nations of the world and the government is anxious to build upon it a disarmament policy which will recognize the pact and leave a controlling influence upon its national policy.

That there should be no misunderstanding, both governments will seek at once peration with the other great naval powers as soon as the negotiations stage proper has been reached. It is well known, however, that a preliminary understanding between America and ourselves is necessary if success is to crown

The British Premier then declares that the conversations with America are purely of a preliminary and explanatory character. This means that the British admiralty has been informed of the American yardstick proposal and is considering it just as it considered the Gibson formula at the time of the last Geneva preparatory conference. Before making reply the admiralty will ascertain whether or not the proposed formula would work to Britain's advantage or otherwise.

Britain's announced intention to adhere to the optional clause of the world court statute in collaboration with the Dominion governments is of special interest to America in view of the possibility of America becoming a member of the world court by means of the Hurst-Root formula. This would mean that Great Britain and the Dominions would agree to accept compulsory arbitration by the world court in disputes relating to recognized international law and the interpretation of treaties. ould leave many loopholes through which Britain or the Dominions might escape the inrisdiction of the court on matters of really vital interest.

But the significance of this consolidation of international action among the British units lies in the program to give each of the British Dominions a place on the council of the League of Nations and make their representatives eligible to be included among judges on the world court.

This was Sir Cecil Hurst's proposition when the Root-Hurst formula was drawn up at Geneva last March. Mr. Root agreed to it. It may mean that the British empire will have seven judges to one American judge on the world court, and that the United States by becoming a member would submit its controversies to a tribunal where Britain would have seven votes to America's one. But the new Labor government is not considering this question from an American standpoint. It would be helpful to British interests to have consolidated and organized support from British dominions in matters which may come before the world court, and that is the control ling British consideration.

In preparing the way for resumption of dinflomatic and trade relations with Soviet Russia, the new Labor government is deliberately shutting its eyes to all considerations excepting those which it believes may bring benefit British trade. No effort to harmonize British and American policy on this score is attempted, and no handleap which American policies might have to contend with is given a moment's thought. Mr. MacDonald persists is his belief that practical advantages can be derived from carrying out his Russian policy, and neither his past experiences nor outside considerations affect his decision.

The Labor party's purpose to examine legislation relating to the sale and supply of in toxicating liquor is not a move in the direction of prohibition but is in line with more efficient regulation of the liquor business. There are no surprises in the proposed internal mea-British interests, as the new Labor government views them, are given exclusive consideration.

From the standpoint of its selfish devotion to British interests throughout, in the international as well as the national field, the new Labor government follows the example of all its predecessors. No one understanding British traditional policy could have expected otherwise.

CELEBRATE SANELY.

Although in thousands of communities Independence Day will be celebrated in theory. safely and sanely this year, it may be expected that the hospitals will be more busy than usual. The safe and sane movement has not yet progressed to a point where fireworks are unobtainable, nor does the public look upon shooting crackers as especially dangerous. On Independence Day last year, according to a National Safety Council survey, there were 239 deaths from fireworks and resultant lockjaw, motor car accidents, drowning, heat, &c., and there were 3,000 serious as well as 30,000 minor injuries. The toll tomorrow may not be as large, but it is safe to predict that there will be 100 or more deaths and thousands of Patriotism is a splendid thing and no one would deprive the American people of the holiday upon which it is given free play. But patriotism can be expressed without gun powder, and the true patriot should be interested in the preservation of the lives of his countrymen. Locally, the anniversary will be marked with fitting ceremony in the parks so there is no excuse for private celebration. Those who violate the law by exploding bootleg fireworks have little idea of the true meaning of the term patriot and merit little consideration at the hands of the police.

The so-called safe fireworks, such as are permitted under local police regulations, should be utilized with due caution. Even the harmless sparkler has been known to cause injury and start fires, and Washington should resolve to celebrate tomorrow with a minimum of damage and injury.

WHAT'S IN A UNIFORM?

Joseph Tibodeau, liquor exporter of Port Lambton, Canada, charges that five men attired as United States officers invaded Canadian waters and seized a quantity of liquor. The accusation should be looked upon as somewhat fantastic. Although prohibition agents have on occasion gone to unusual extremes in searching for and seizing evidence, it is not likely, especially in view of the prevailing criticism of enforcement along the border, that United States officers would deliberately invade foreign waters to seize liquor. Walter Petty, acting collector of customs at Detroit says. "None of my men would null a stunt like that," and there is every reason to believe that he is right. But Mr. Petty speaks further, as follows: "I don't think there is anything to the story unless the five men were bighjackers dressed as officers so that the customs or Coast Guard would be blamed for the incident." The latter statement warrants consideration.

Following every shooting of innocent civilians by prohibition agents there has arisen a cry to "put all officers in uniform." Uniformed agents would command respect and obedience, the argument has run. Persons commanded to halt by uniformed officers would know that they were not being held up and they would not be inclined to dispute the authority of the officers. But what is to prevent any highwayman, highjacker or crook from providing himself with a uniform, as, apparently, did the five men who seized a quantity of liquor in Canadian water, and depending upon the respect a uniform inspires to influence potential victims to play into his

Henry Virkula was killed near International Falls by Government agents who brandished a sign reading "Stop! Similarly, uniforms are so easy to copy that no peaceable civilian can be blamed for refusing to halt when an individual in uniform peremptorily

FORESTS AND FLOOD CONTROL.

Flood control on the Mississippi River is subject of spirited controversy. Hoover has been asked to restudy the Government plan by those who differ with the interpretation placed upon it and widespread dissatisfaction apparently exists in the Mississippi Valley States. The House committee on flood control has now brought forth another phase of the general problem which demands attention.

The flood-control act of 1928 called for compilation of further data on the relation of forestry to the overflow of the Mississippi. An extensive investigation recently has been completed of every important drainage area in the entire Mississippi system. The report, prepared by the Forest Service for the House committee, strongly recommends that improvement of forest conditions throughout the basin should have a part in the flood prevention program.

A close relation between vegetation and flood control is everywhere recognized. In addition to regulating drainage, forests are a most effective check against erosion, and consequently reduce silting of river channels and reservoirs. The report shows that, under proper management, forests can be made to produce profitable crops and at the same time reduce the danger of floods.

The forests of the Mississippi watershed are responsible for a reduction of nearly 15 inches in the possible flood crest, in spite of the present poor management. The committee reports that if all forest land in the valley were managed in accordance with sound principles of forestry, a further reduction of 55 inches in flood crests would follow. This restraining effect would be equivalent to reser voirs with 46,000,000 acre-feet capacity.

To accomplish this result the committee recommends complete reorganization of forestfire protection and the extension of cooperative forest planting on waste land. The Gov ernment is also urged to continue to protect its national forests, parks and game refuges and to create new national forest areas from the unreserved public domain. In what are termed "critical forest areas" prompt extension of public ownership is recommended. This would enable the Government to improve forest conditions on land which now contributes an unnecessarily large and destructive run-off, and to protect its flood-coatrol structures from serious damage. The report indicates that approximately 6,000,000 acres of land in "critical areas" are in serious need of administration as public forests. The remaining 125,000,000 acres of forest land on the Mississippi watershed should be reforested through private enterprise with the cooperation of Federal and State governments.

It appears useless to construct great engineering projects for control of the Mississippi waters while allowing conditions responsible for flooding to remain unchanged. The report indicates that even the engineering structures will be menaced unless steps are taken to reduce erosion. Whatever the outcome of the controversy over the Jadwin plan, this phase of flood control should be given attention.

Now that they've invented a meter to measure ultra-violet rays how much longer will the sunlight be free?

The new armored tank with a speed ranging from 50 to 115 miles an hour ought to sell well in Detroit and International Falls.

It's his own fault if Count Trapp, of Chur burg Castle, is dissatisfied with the $25,000 his ancestral armor brought in an auction sale. He should have advised residents of International Falls that a suit of mail was on the market.

JAMES W. GOOD

By OLIVER McKEE, Ir. In the Boston Transcript.

If James W. Good, Secretary of War, has a rookie squad of recruits to drill, he has plenty of regular corporals to teach them the manual of arms. If he has a big maneuver to arrange in Texas, or New England, involving considerable troop movements, he can call upon the chief of staff, and many other professional soldiers, to arrange the details. If, on the other hand, the War Department needs some one to go to bat for it in a congressional hearing, or if it needs a spokesman in the Cabinet, the department requires not so much an expert in military tactics, as a strong man who understands, from practical experience, how results are achieved in politics.

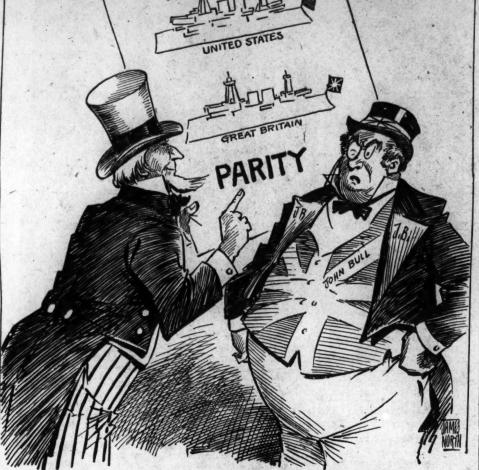

Army officers feel that their new civilian chief has abundantly proved his ability to deliver the goods." Naturally, there was much that Mr. Good had to learn about the military establishment, and he is not yet at the end of his school days. There can be no doubt, however, about Mr. Good's ability to think for himself nor concerning his executive capacity, and the soundness of his conception of his duties as a Cabinet officer, the civilian head of the Army. He has already proved these qualities in the opinion of officers here, and as he broadens his familiarity with the problems of the Army his effectiveness as Secretary of War may be expected steadily to in crease.

It is natural that congressmen should bulk large in the visiting list of the office of the War Secretary. Mr. Good himself was for many years one of the leading figures on Capitol Hill. His old friends drop in at the War Department when down town, if for no other reason than to slap Jim Good on the back, and wish him good luck as a member of the President's official family. The facthat the present Secretary of War is an old colleague, veteran of many a congressional battle, brings the War Department a little closes to the Capitol than it has perhaps been for some time. There are congressmen, no doubt who repair to the War Department in person in the hope of speeding action on some matter at the department in which they are interested. but such calls are not many. By and large it is friendly good will that prompts most of these visits. For Jim Good is no bureaucrat, holding himself aloof and reserved from the men and women who make the laws and vote the money to keep the wheels of the Government running. He has a cordial welcome for each of his old associates, and time for an informal chat "off the record."

The personal factor should count for much when the War Department needs a champion or an advocate at the Capitol. Mr. Good, we can imagine, will call for his car to take him to Congress with no fear of what a congressional inquisition may have in store for him. For Good knows the ropes as well as any committee chairman of this day, and understanding as he does the congressional mind and psychology, and prejudices, he will know what to say, and what line of argument to use in asking Congress to approve a War Department program. Though no great tussles lie ahead, so far as we can now see, no year passes but the War Department must ask congressional approval for certain things it wants to do. It may be a question of pay and promotion; it may be an increase in Army personnel and equipment. or it may be the construction of barracks and officers' quarters. Whatever it is, the chances of trouble all along the line are considerable. A group of congressmen with axes to grind may unite to delay or sidetrack consideration of the program. The Democratic minority may try to make political capital out of the proposal, or again, the House, in a mood of thrift and parsimony, may decide the Army does not need to wash, and may cut out the soap allowance to save $100,000 a year or so. It sometimes takes a man with good humor, and a knack of getting things accomplished to secure from Congress the legislation the Army needs. Good knows Congress inside out, from the committee room to the lobby, and as the War Department's attorney on Capitol Hill, and as the administration's spokesman for land defense, Mr. Good appears to be a pretty

A Secretary of War has a good many nonmilitary duties and responsibilities. He has supervision over inland waterways, canals and various engineering projects. He must watch our relations with Porto Rico and the Philippines, and he sits on numerous commissions The military establishment is taken care of pretty effectively by the chief of staff, and the chiefs of branches, all officers of many years of military experience. The job of the Secretary of War is political and administrative, and if he has capable professional advisers, then the purely military problems are not likely to cause much trouble.

Why Follow a Strange Path if the Old Paths Lead Home? =By ROBERT QUILLEN=

m OOD}$ and wise men who observe the unrest of the modern world think it indicates the need of a new religion.

The world, they say, has need of a religion that will adjust itself to nodern life and enable men to solve modern problems—a practical religion that will face realities and comfort men without disturbing modern cus cms. What they mean to say is that moderns, having established a way of

What they mean to say is that moderns, having established a way life, now need a religion to approve it. The old religions aren't satisfactory because they ask man to change. The new religion would accept man as he is and make him happy by patting him on the back.

It is a pleasant dream, but it never can be more than a dream. Its fundamental and fatal error consists in disregarding the obvious truth that man must be adjusted to religion, not religion to man. "The kingdom of heaven is within you," said the Great Teacher; and that truth, and that truth alone, enables man to get happiness from religion.

How, then, can man establish the kingdom of heaven within himself? That is the only question that matters, and the correct answer to it affords the only way of peace yet discovered by the human race—that peace of Gol which passeth understanding.

Every great religion was founded by a teacher who wisely scorned the treasures men set their hearts upon. This life is brief and man is foolish to struggle for riches, rank and honors that must be left behind in a faw years. We are all brethren, under sentence of death, and therefore slould pity and help one another, and not envy or covet ossessions that can be kept only for a day.

Live the good life; cultivate virtue; be humble and compassionate serve unselfishly.

Here was the way to happiness, for it is the love man gives that rings him joy and not the love he gets. Millions followed the great teachers; purget their hearts of greed, envy and malice; learned indifference to the glories of this world, and were happy.

Later generations forgot and made religion a matter of form and ritual. It gave them no happiness because they did not do the things necessary to establish the kingdom of heaven within themselves.

But the old way remains the only way, for man's nature has not changed. A new religion made to fit him would be useless; he must make himself fit religion.

Those who covet the things of this world must get their happiness out of this world. The happiness in religion is for those who can understand that nothing here is worth while—that joy cometh in the morning.

Dirt Farmer Suggests That the President Put on the Farm Board a "Plain Man" Who Understands Psychology of Country Life.

To the Editor of The Post selecting big men for the Farm Board, President Hoover should not overlook the importance of including a sound ing student of the farm situation who is not too far rem common people.

The first task of the board will be to establish public confidence. The success of the whole venture is in gaining confidence and cooperation of the individual farmers. While the actual work of organizing the industry ar the principle of cooperative marketing will be done by local leaders, it would be well to have in the personnel of the board itself some one who knows the psychology of country life as it in now The importance of having such a

The importance of having such a man on the board is second only to the dif-ficulty of finding just the man for the place. His name may not appear "Who's Who" or in the long list commendations of the various bodies ering candidates. He may not be at the head of any of the large farm or-ganizations or director in any bank. He will more probably be found among will more probably be found among those who have not yet reached the top but who has come far enough in study and experience to know what it is all about and still be able to meet

In a final analysis the purpose the agriculture marketing act is to so stabilize the industry that those who engage in it may pursue their course with reasonable assurance of a just reward. This means the small as well as the large farm operator.

There are many obstacles in the way of that goal. Chief among them is the individual independence of the rank and file of farm folk. This can not be overlooked in the formation of any policy seeking a solution of the whole farm problem.

The right man for this place is rare, but we hope the President will be able to secure his services in the initial formation of the Farm Board. DIRT FARMER

France Has No Unemployment Be-cause Her Workers Were Killed in the War.

To the Editor of The Postask the courtesy of your columns protest against the cynical misrepreentation of fact contained in the statement which Washington dispatched of June 28 attribute to Senator Borah, whereby the magnitude of the French osses in the war are made to appear as evidence of prosperity. Senator Borah is quoted as saying: "France is now the to help in her industries."

France has no unemployment be-cause the task of repairing the wanton destruction wrought by Germany far exceeds the man power the war has left her. She lost in the war 1,360,000 killed and over 4,000,000 wounded Practically all of the men in France between the ages of 19 and 50 wers called to the colors. Out of every six, one was killed and three of the remaining five were wounded. With this reduced man power she has had to re-build over 900,000 houses and 28,000 factories. Senator Borah is correct in saying that she has had to ask Italians and Poles to take the place of the army of her dead.

The American people have not forgotten the aggressions which forced us into the war, nor the Zimmerman note offering Texas, Arizona and California to Meyleo, in Parizona and California to Mexico in return for an alliance against us. They have not forgotten what we should have had to pay had the war been lost nor that for fourteen out of the nineteen months of our participation in it we could give only dollars where our allies gave lives. We have been inarticulate in our disc have been inarticulate in our discon-tent that our politicians should ask the return of our dollars, when no asking can enable us to pay back life; but no American can remain silent when thos ne to speak in his tempt to distort the greatness of our allies' sacrince into a justification of such demands

HENRY BEDINGER MITCHELL. New York City, July 1.

The National Education Association Code of Ethics Expresses the View of the American People.

To the Editor of The Post-Sir: The crisis resulting from the attempt to vidently passed, but the National Education Association could not forego the temptation of expressing its stand on such questions. The delegates adopte a code of ethics which included provisions that "the schoolroom is n the proper theater for religious, politi-cal or personal propaganda" and "the teacher should not permit his educa-tional work to be used for partisan politics, personal gain or selfish propa pointies, personal gain or sensa propaganda of any kind."

The schools should be reserved for the teaching of knowledge and the fundamentals of character. The public will heartily indorse the code of the National Education Association, which frowns upon the teaching of propaganda of any kind. The ger tude of the American people would not be materially different than that ex-"Eggsactly!"

be materially different than the sugpressed by the educators. This suggests to me that not only a large section of the public, but the school ion of the public, but the sch teachers themselves, would have rebelled at any program for teaching prohibition. The outcome of the incident should be a lesson to those in harge of enforcing the antiliquor laws.

He is coming to this country as a guest of the Rainbow Die ion Association, which is to hold annual reunion in Baltimore on fuly 13, 14 and 15, and is due in the Capital on the evening of July 11 to be a guest of the French Ambassador, M. Paul Claudel, at the Embassy.

Next day he will be entertained at luncheon by Col. William J. Donovan who served in France with the Rainbow Division with conspicuous gallantry; and that evening M. Claudel will give a dinner in his honor at the Embassy. On July 13, before leaving for Baitimore, Gen. Gourand will be a luncheon guest of Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Chief of Staff.

Arrangements are being made for the distinguished French soldier to lay a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington, a rite without which no official visit to the Capital would be compiete. And presumably he will be received by President Hoover and make calls of ceremony upon other American officials.

turned to the car, she had put a small vial of iodine to her mouth and drunk the contents.

What happened to the automobile, or why it had been necessary to hall another car to take the girl to the hospital, "Johnny" couldn't seem to remember.

At the Fifth Precinct, where he was taken for questioning, he told an entirely different story. There he denied, that there had been any argument, or that he could conceive of any possible reason why the attractive blond girl should have sought her life.

He told police that he had called to keep an appointment and that the pair had set out for a stroll, that she had told him her mother was ill and asked him to wait while she bought some medicine. As she came out of the drug store to rejoin him on the sidewalk outside, he continued, she tilted the bottle to her lips. Realizing that something was wrong, he declared, he attempted to wrest the vial from her grasp, but she had already swallowed most of the contents before he succeeded.

The druggist, Raymond J. Lowry, tells another tale. He says that the pair entered his store together, and stood talking earnestly together until her turn came to be waited upon. When told that she must register for the purchase of iodnie in the District, Lowry said, the girl seemed surprised.

"Oh, must I register for that? I didn't know it was poison," she told him. The duggist explained later that the purchase was impressed upon him particularly in some inexplicable manner.

particularly in some inexplicable manner.

"Somehow," he said, "I seemed to have a hunch when I made that sale. I believe now it must have been that there was just a trace of tears in the gril's eyes, but possibly it was just one of those feelings such as poker players often experience. At any rate, if I had had any reason to suspect that the poison was to be used for any such our pose. I certainly would have refused to sell it."

Nichols Is Exonerated

Complete exoneration of a charge of embezzing 87.500 from C. G. Martin, of Charleston, W. Va., was given Ennis Monroe Nichols, of the Valley Vista Apartments, Washington, yesterday when Judge Henry K. Black in court at Charleston ordered the case against Nichols and others noile prossed for lack of evidence.

The court held that at no time since Nichols' arrest in Washington last February was there any evidence to show he had ever been in West Virginia or had any connection with the charge made against him. At the time of his arrest Nichols, denying any guilt, refused to waive extradition. When West Virginia authorities admitted they had no evidence, Nichols was released from custody of police here and yesterday's court action removed the case from the records.

Radio Man In Cabinet Is Predicted

Secretary of Communication Seen as Coming Need of President; 100 Stations Will Offer Law Appreciation Appeal.

With atmospheric conditions better an on Monday night and yet leaving uch to be desired in the early part the evening, radio listeners n distant stations with fair success st night. Reception improved mateas the night wore on.

Perhaps the next President of the ited States will have a cabinet memwhose field will be radio and comications exclusively. At least such proposal has been made, and in view the rapidly mounting importance of lio and ever-increasing complexity iting it is not far fetched by any lishment of a communications com-islon, but if the field of radio exhission, but if the field of radio ex-grads as much in the next four years it has in the past the duties are of to outgrow even a commission such a Senator Couzens proposes. Besides, ith the inauguration of national edu-ation via radio, a scheme which Sec-estary of the Interior Wilbur is having avestigated at present, the interest of the Government in broadcasting will avestigate axpand.

threstigated at present, the interest of the Government in broadcasting will certainly expand.

In addition, there is the part radio is playing in aviation and the approach of television to be considered. In view of all this Ernest Kauer, president of CCCO Manufacturing Co., of Providence, R. I., says: "It is my reasoned opinion that sooner or later, the President will require a secretary in his cabinet who will need to organize a department to attend wholly to the problem of communication and nothing else.

"Such a secretary would amalgamate under his direction all the present functions of the Federal radio communications, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Aviation Commission—which while it does not exist is sure to be created as the need becomes teafined—thus all the problems affecting communication will be brought under a single control."

Contending that radio has already a single control."

Contending that radio has already passed out of the industrial stage into the field of a public utility. Kauer concludes that such a cabinet post would "insure its development along the lines of the greatest good to the greatest number."

Exactly 100 radio stations have signed to make the second law appreciation appeal at 7 o'clock tomorrow, according to announcement by C. A. Earl, president of the Charles Freshman Co., Inc., who heads the committee. The first appeal was made from 152 stations on Memorial Day, Again on Independence Day as on May 30 the keynote of the addresses will be law appreciation, not law enforcement, as the latter term has earned "an odious reputation," according to the committee.

Radio beacons are among the most recent developments in the Lighthouse Service, the first successful signals of his character having been placed in commission in 1921 in the approaches to New York harbor. There are now a total of 56 radio beacons in the United States, which is more than half of the total of such stations in the sorid.

n time of fog, their operation has been betwieded during clear weather, as they be carried bearings to be taken far beyond the range of any signal depending on vision or sound. Radio beacons function on much the same principles to do light and sound signals; that is, they are placed at important points areful to navigation and periodically lend out signals, each with a distinuishing characteristic.

These signals are utilized by ships by means of a radio-compass, or direction finder, with which upward of 1,000 commercial vessels, besides large numbers of government vessels, are now equipped.

Accessories for Evening

T is the little things that count—especially in a chic woman's appearance. The simplest dress becomes a gown of geat charm when the skirt is gathered to the blouse in a shaped line and when its hemline is stregular with long points, as in the illustration. And a dinner jacket adds a smart touch when it has bolero lines and a soft, tied collar.

Accessories, too, do their part toward elegance in evening clothes. At the top of the column in the sketch is a clasp of cut crystals, a smart variation of the brooch. This is effective clasped on a shoulder strap or on the back decolletage of an evening gown.

In the center is a bag with more than a hint of sophistication about it.

It is much larger than the moon, but it is many times as far away, at the closest point it ever comes to the earth it is more than a hundred times as distant as the moon. Sometimes it is almost 700 times as far favay, at the closest point it ever comes to the earth it is more than a hundred times as distant as the moon. Wenus travels around the sun at a tremendous rate. In one hour it covers 80,000 miles! Since it is so far away we do not notice the movement with the naked eye; but if you look at Venus or another planet through a tel-scopp to keep it in sight. This is due partiy to the motion of the earth. All around it are dense masses of clouds. Because of the clouds it is a full rich light which shines so softly and purely upon us that we may exclaim:

July Fourth Music Over Air Tonight

Radio Will Be Permeated With Patriotic Sentiment. "Yankee Doodle," "My Country Tis of Thee" Among Selections.

Patriotic music will permeate the radio programs tonight in anticipation of July Fourth. Even a pseudo-opera adcast is not free of it. In fact, the tendency has been mounting since Sunday, will be more apparent tomorrow, and will then break into an orchestral climax Thursday.

The Mobiloil concert over WRC at o'clock tonight is given entirely to American music. Such numbers "Yankee Doodle," "The Drum," "Yankee Doodle," "The Drum," "My Own United States," "My Country Tis of Thee," are included on the program. Adelaide de Locs, contraito, will be the featured soloist. She will be assisted by the Mobiloil male quartet and the concert orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee, conductor of the Roxy Symphony Orchestra and composer of such well-known songs as "Diane" and "Charmiane."

Even the Delmoling house of the contraction of the Polymore of the Polymore

"Charmiane."
Even the Palmolive hour program at 8:30 o'clock, in which Olive Palmer will sing the "Swan Song" from Thomas" "Hamlet," will open with an orchestral and vocal rendition of "Stars and Stripes Forever." Another operatic highlight will be the Toreador Song from "Carmen" by the ensemble.

Different kinds of summer will be featured in the musical program that Bernhard Levitow and his orchestra will present in the Kolster Radio hour at 9 o'clock over WMAL. Victor Herbert's "Indian Summer" will pay tribute to one kind of summer, while the scherzo from Mendelssohn's "Midsummar Night's Dream" will represent another. The reat of the program will consist of the second movement from Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, the first movement of Schubert's Octett in F Major, and DeBussy's lovely and serene composition "At Evening."

Three patriotic selections are included in the program of the lingram Shavers at 8 o'clock over WRC. These are a paraphrase of "Yankee Doodle." Victor Herbert's famous "American Fantasie." and some close harmony by the barber shop trio on "My Dream of the U. S. A." Different kinds of summer will be

Symphonic jazz from the west coast studios of the National Broadcasting Co to Broadway will be broadcast by the Pacific Vagabonds over WRC and the N. B. C. chain at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The program includes: "Western Land," "Swing Low, Sweet Charlot," "Love Sings a Song in My, Heart," "Jesse James." "The Lone Star Trail," and selections from "The Three Musterers" and selections from "The Three Mus-keteers."

A new composition by Jessie Deppen, a solo by Frank Luther, and a new arrangement of "Deep River" by Frank
Black will be heard during the Happy
Wonder Bakers' program at 7:30 o'clock.
"Chinese Fantasy," the newest work of Jessie Deppen, will be played by the orchestra, and "Let the Rest of the Most models were shown with special Talbot gloves of a coarse-grained suede in various colors, coming to the elbow.

Evening dresses were accompanied by long lace gloves.

CASTING an eye in retrospect over the collection of J. Suzanne Talbot, we find this house expressing, among others, the following tendencies: The dominant colors in the collection were pale blue, green, red, beige, brown and, of course, black and white. These colors have been carried out in Shantung, light woolens, Scotch plaid woolens, taffets, plain and printed, crepe de chine, ditto, brocaded satins and tulle.

The waistline is sometimes in the normal position, sometimes slightly below the waist. Skirt fullness is pronounced, being sometimes obtained by a number of godets and sometimes various original pleat treatments. In some cases very full skirt tilers are ap-

We tell you exactly how to make it in this week's illustrated leaflet, for which you may send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post. The variations are in the sleeves and decollette, and we tell you how to make them, too!

Vionnet Beige Satin

brings Paris in a Fall Mood

Vionnet has chosen a beige and here it is . . . so alluring in this satin trock because it molds the figure and flares so suavely that it ngure and llares so suavely that it is utterly flattering! It is exquisitely feminine, too, with delicately embroidered off-white georgette at neckline and cuffs! Smart indeed to wear now and all through the Fall.

JULY 3. MARY BLAKE

11 a. m. to 12 noon, and from 9 p. m.

to 10 p. m.

Astrological signs of this date pressage the formation of a new friendship that will be of great moment in your life. They also indicate much emotional stimulation and a certain dagree of social advancement. There will be sensed a tendency to speculate and to lost.

Children born July 3 will possess active minds, much originality, a good deal of the right sort of pride, while a persistent, still, small voice, will keep them in the "straight and narrow."
They will have affectionate dispositions, and will be sought by friends and as-mirers.

Market Overcomes Some of Its Hesitancy; Convertibles Again Features.

FOREIGN LIST MOVES UP

New York, July 2 (A.P.) .- The bone market overc ne a little of its heat-tancy today as time money held at 7½ per cent and retention of the 15 per int charge for call loans failed to cause serious concern over the credi clook. Advances were made in all ups of listed obligations. With the on of the still buovant convert les, the rail division, backbone of the narket, showed the best improvement teel company issues displayed consid-rable strength.

Atchison convertible 4½s, which have risen about 10 points in the last week, featured the share privilege section, which experienced profit taking in part of the session. This railroad debenture touched a record high of 138, reacted about 3 points and then rose to close at 137 for a net gain of 4½ points as the stock touched a new peak.

American I. C. Chemical 5½s, dormant for the last month. rose 3½ on a revival of interest to close at 105½ after moving within a 4½-point range. American Telephone 4½s continued to lead the market in volume of trading, but showed a net rise of only ½. International Telephone 4½s, on a turnover of more than $1,000,000, par value, lost 4 points.

In the list of standard rails the Atchism issues stood out prominently. That road's general 4s, a bond of the highest frating, rose ¼, while the Transcontinental Short Line 4s advanced 1½. Other popular railroad obligations to finish in the higher ground on moderately persistent inquiry were Baltimore & Otho refunding 5s. St. Paul general 4s, and adjustment 5s. Rock Island refunding 4s. Denver & Rio Grande 4½s and 5s. Erie refunding 5s. Florida East Coast 5s. Missouri Pacific general 4s. New York. Chicago & St. Louls debenture 4s and Union Pacific 4s.

Bethlehem Steel bonds sold from ¼ to 1½ higher, while Inland Steel 4½s, otts Steel 6s and United States Steel 5s also improved. Other industrials and the utilities were higher.

The the specialty group Schuloo 6½s, series A and B. climbed 2½ and 1½. respectively. Foreign sugars were firm on reports from Washington that the proposed duty on the staple would be reduced.

Foreign government issues worked irregularly higher. Brazilian bonds attracted fair buying at higher levels.

Curb Review

New York, July 2 (A.P.).-Major New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Major speculative activity in today's curb market was on the up-side, although sufficient soft spots developed to give the market the appearance of irregularity during a good part of the session. Prices generally got off to a poor start, but gathered strength as the session progressed in sympathy with a rather broad "bull" movement on the "big board." Call money held at 15 per cent all day, and this tended to restrict speculative operations.

Tregularity was most pronounced in the public utility group. Electric Bond & Share dropped 7 points to 124% on the first sale in response to the announcement of an additional stock offering, closing around that level.

At the close Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, control of which recently was placed in a ten-year voting trust, closed by points higher at 146%. Long Island Lighting was marked up more than 6 points to a new high at 35. American Light & Tracilion broke 11 points on condition of the control of the control of the first time in weeks on predictions of unusually favorable second quarter earnings reports by the large producers and refiners. Gulf of Pennsylvania and Humble advanced 2% and 2 points, respectively, and Standard Oils of Indiana and Ohio and a few others moved up a point or so.

Except for a 2-point gain in Douglas Aircraft, based on the reported receipt of a large Government order, there was relatively little interest in the aviation stocks. Hazeltine ran up to a new high at 70% on buying influenced by the announcement that the company had won an important patent suit, and then fumbled to 64% on profit taking.

Examination of the past performance chart of Ai Espinosa reveals that last Sunday was not the first time he slumped into the eightes after playing stellar golf all the way down to the home stretch.

At Columbia, in 1921, the Chicago professoinal led the national open field at the end of the second round and was tied with Jim Barnes for the lead at the end of the third. On his fourth trip out, however, he exploded with a bang, scoring an 80 and blowing the title to Barnes by eight strokes, although finishing second. Again, at Worcester in 1925, he was tied with Bobby Jones for first place at the end of the third round, but once more ran afoul of an eighty in the final session, finishing in a tie for fourth place. In the 1927 open tournament his 69 on one round on that heart-breaking course was two strokes better than any other man was able to turn in during the tournament, but he could not maintain a winning pace. Espinosa can and does play great golf, but he doesn't seem to be able to play four consecutive rounds of it.

Tilden - Hunter Also Reach Wimbledon Semifinals.

IMBLEDON, England, July 2 (AP.).—Young America scored is a smashing victory over some of the finest tennis talent of France on the courts of Wimbledon today.

In a thrilling and hotly contested match, John Van Ryn, of Orange, N. J., and Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., defeated the great French pair of Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, defending champions, 7—5, 8—6, 3—6, 8—6, to reach the semifinals.

The more experienced teams of Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter, and George Lott and John Hennessey, also advanced in impresive fashion, but America's last chance for the championship in the women's doubles division vanished when Helen Wills and her fellow Californian, Edith Cross, were eliminated in the quarter-finals by Mrs. C. St. McIlquham and Miss Ermyntrude Harvey, of England. The scores were 6—4, 8—10, 6—3.

Tilden and Hunter beat Heinrich Kleinschroth, of Germany, and Baron von Kehrling, of Hungary, in straight sets, 6—4, 8—6, 6—1, entering the semifinals, where they are to meet the hard-hitting American youngsters, Allison and Van Ryn.

(United Press Sports Editor).

EW YORK, July 1 (U.P.).—The reason for the collapse of most of the prominent contenders in the recent national open champlonship provided a puzzle for goifers.

How come, they demanded, that Johnny Farrell, defending champion, failed to qualify for the last 38 holes? What happened to Walter Hagen, who had the stuff to win the British open, but could get nowhere at Winged Proot? Why should Bobby Jones suddenly let down and take a 79 for his final round, forcing a play-off in which at capable performer like Al Espinosa shot rounds of 84 and 80?

The answer is, why not? We have become so accustomed to consistently good performances on the part of our leading goifers, particularly the promote of the part of th Fron Shots Most Important at Open.

At Winged Foot the iron play, the second shot, had to be so accurate that the least deviation from the line left it up to old lady luck to decide the golfer's fate.

The openings to the greens were narrow and the greens themselves shallow. Unless a drive was placed with exceeding accuracy the player was gambling when he hit his second shot.

Johnny Farrell, who was decidedly overgolfed, was the first victim at Winged Foot. The former champion didn't get a real good "break" during his first two rounds.

Walter Hagen, overgolfed, needed more luck than the fates had in store for him this time. Was not playing particularly bad golf, but he was far back in the field. At the end "The Hagi" was, shooting to get inside the first $0, so that he would not be required to qualify for next year's open.

The sudden let down of Bobby Jones which precipitated the anticlimatical tie can be explained in another way.

The Atlantan was thoroughly fed up with things at Winged Foot.

Bobby came to this championship with one idea in mind, and that was to beat Horton Smith.

This is not generally known. Jones might have passed up this particular open if he hadn't heard so much about the young Missourian who was to supplant him atop the golfing world.

"Is that so?" demanded the Atlantan.
"Where 'did I put those golf clubs of mine?"

where did I put those golf clubs of mine?"

He found them, although he hadn't used them a dozen times since last October. He came to Winged Poot and proceeded to spread-eagle the field for the first three rounds. Looking around at his pursuers he couldn't see Horton Smith for the crowd.

About that time Bobby got a little fed up with the whole affair. He let down, and even he can not do that and still play par golf. As a result he was forced into two extra rounds on Sunfay. What he did to all Espinosa and to par is now golf? history.

As for Espinosa's collapse on the final day, that can be explained in several ways. He suffers from an inferiority complex. He never did believe he could play golf with Bobby Jones. Now he is sure of it.

OLLYER'S COMMENTS OF LIFE SPORT OF KINGS

ALDOSTA.

Here is the old wopsey tiger slipped me by the chief of staff over at Devonshire, also allow me to slip you the chatter appended: "Tell the boys that Gentry and his connections are down, book, line and sinker. Also the sky is the limit." Now if you need it stronger than that, please go write it yourself. SUN VIEW should as easily hold the others safe.

The fifth really is no contest. As a matter of fact, REPUBLIC should be able to fall down, get up, turn three somersaults, then be the first to catch the judge's eye.

HOI POLLOI, which is in rare form at present, is also named to bring home the bacon in the third. I like this one extra well. More anon.

Warning—Out at Arlington Park the track is deep in fresh sand. As a matter of fact it compares well with the old Bowle footing. Don's look for it to get fast during the meeting. Extreme care should be exercised in playing horses at this track. There will be many upsets due to the track footing.

French Amateur Champ
Chantilly, France, July 2 (A.P.)
Jack Westland, an American, won the French amateur golf championship to-day by defeating Richard Fletcher, an Englishman, in the final by a margin of 5 up and 5 to play.

The Britisher's game went to pieces furing the afternoon's 18 holes when rain began falling and the American amply walked away with the match.
Westland fully earned his new laurels, having eliminated John Dawson, of Chicago, in a semifinal match yesterday and beaten other good players in earlier rounds.

The new champion has resided and played in Seattle and Chicago, but was entered here as a member of the Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y.

A good hitter, Heinie also can run and throw, but his sense of direction is poor in both those enterprises. His brain is liable to go into reverse at brain is liable to go into reverse at any time and especially when it can wreck a lot of hopes by so doing. Possessed of good nature that nothing can ruffle, Heinie always has been the butt of the practical jokers of his club.

FREE OF FATALITIES

SAFETY COUNCIL IS URGED

cheolete system of traffic regulation in the world," has a rate of only 18.5.

Hariand Fraises Police.

William H. Hariand, director of traffic, discussing the situation yesterday, expressed appreciation for the activities of Maj. Henry G. Fratt, superintandent of police, and Lieut. E. W. Brown, inspector of traffic, in maintanding so commendable a record for the District.

"It is not only during the past week that the major and inspector have been keeping Washington a safe place to travel in." Mr. Hariand pointed cut. "It is that way right along; these figures are for 55 weeks. Of course, the ideal of perfection would be a city in which there were no traffic fatallities and no accidents, and and while we have not, of course, reached that paradise yet, I believe that when the records for the entire, country are considered, our Police Department is entitled to high praise.

Referring particularly to the greater activities of the softice additional motorcycle policemen assigned to the Traffic Bursau from the various precincts have been on duty, Mr. Harland pointed our that he does not regard this in the nature of a drive, to be conducted for a week or two "and then forgotten." but rather as indicative of the permanent attitude of District officials toward traffic offenders.

Judge Urges Safety Council.

Judge Cirges Safety Council.

Judge Cirges Safety Council.

Judge Cirges A. Schuldt, presiding in Traffic Court, yesterday discussed an elaboration on the Police Department's plans for promoting traffic safety, advocating creation of a safety council which would make a constant study of all conditions having to do with the regulation of traffic, and to which private citizens could make suggestions or complaints. He expressed the opinion that operation of such a council would promote a greater public interest in the traffic problem, marked by a greater sense of personal responsibility on the part of the public.

Judge Schuldt shows no signs of relening in his attitude toward traffic offenders. The sentences he imposed yesterday were calculated to strike terror into the hearts of violators of the regulations and, according to Mr. Harland, the penalties are already having the effect of making motorists cautious to avoid any action that might tend to bring them into court to answer charges.

In all, Judge Schuldt heard 115 cases yesterday, collecting a total of $1,433 in fines. This amount, added to $325 collateral injetted by 108 defendants who declined to come into court, gave the Traffic Bureau gross revenue of $1,748 for the day. Fines for speeding were increased from $10 and $15 to $15 and $20, these penalties being meted out to twenty offenders convicted on that charge.

The most severe penalty imposed within the week fell upon William Lewis and Christopher Lewis, colored. brothers. William was sentenced to 250 days in jail on two charges of driving while his permit was revoked. On one of these occasions he exhibited his permit, Christopher was sentenced to a fine of $500 or 80 days in jail. He went to jail.
